

Thanksgiving Day. 1861?

106

Dear Mr Garrison
I send you a spec. of
of Mr. Beckett M. P.
that would, I think,
go very nicely, into the Refuge of Oppression, & furnish you with a good theme
for a few remarks.
The scene of the pro-
slavery battle well
seems transferred to England. It is true that this man is a Tory, but the Liberals talk very little if any better. They assume a certain sort of hypocrisy in reference to republican institutions, but it is very transparent. I expect better things from Mr. Klon Miller but I am disappointed. Baighe "the unenglish Englishman"

as his country men will have seen, to be almost our only friend among the public men of England.

But it is not of great consequence except to themselves, what they do say.

I wait impatiently
for good news from the army, but I have no doubt of the final success. I have all along cared for it only in reference to the Slaves, but I now feel that with our salvation as a nation is involved the hopes & progress of the world for many long years.

Believe me, in
Mr. A. Harte

Very truly your friend

A. W. Weston, Jr.
